I understand that Young Men's Preparatory Academy has a rigorous academic program with high expectations for student achievement. I am committed to taking the steps necessary to promote my success at YMPA as tomorrow's global leader. Academic honesty is part of being a principled leader and learner. Students at Young Men's Preparatory Academy are expected to strive to develop the attributes that are embedded throughout the curriculum and in the school's daily life. As leaders, we encourage our young men to be:

- being on time for class each day
- reviewing all classwork, turning in all assignments in on time, and completely daily homework, including reading assignments
- being prepared for school each day
- studying for tests and quizzes
- demonstrating academic honesty on all tests and quizzes, including refraining from plagiarizing work done by others
- participating in group projects
- working hard and cooperating with teachers
- behaving well in all classes and off campus when representing YMPA
- respecting other students and their property
- refraining from leaving school without permission
- exhibiting the right attitude

Collusion is defined as supporting malpractice by another student, (i.e. allowing one's work to be copied or copying).

Plagiarizing is defined as using the words and ideas of another author as one's own. Paraphrasing words or ideas is still considered plagiarizing.

Consequences for Academic Dishonesty

Students will receive a "zero" or "no credit" for an assignment attempted or completed through cheating. Depending on the student's history of misconduct, its intent, or its severity, other action may be taken, including detention or suspension.
